

The Angels

They are the Angels of the nation
that give their time and dedication to the care and help of others
to dads and children and their mothers.

To the old the sick the ailing
and in their duties rarely failing.
Always with a word of solace,
no bias of colour, creed or race.

Not always feeling at their best
being human just like the rest,
but always with a ready smile
without prejudice, cant or guile.

Doctors and nurses and their staff
never doing things by half.
It's not a job we all would do,
so much is owed to these caring few.

Not always successful with a cure,
but still they try and will endure.
Consultants or nurses and helpers that care,
all contribute with their share.

A dying breed, I hope they're not,
for they're the only hope, we've got.

Dedicated to the doctors and staff at Orchid House Surgery.
The Poole and Bournemouth Hospitals
and the National Health service in general.
As a thank you for their work and dedication.

Composed by Les Brand 2003 and published 2003